

The response reproduced below was submitted to the consultation held by the Nuffield Council on Bioethics on the ethics of research involving animals during October-December 2003. The views expressed are solely those of the respondent(s) and not those of the Council.

Smadar, UK

animal - mouse as a money, as human living thing - feel pain, and have his own senses . we as humans do not have any rights to enslave any of them to our different needs if its eating, experiments or others.

we can not say: this animal feel less or more, we cannot know and do not have her senses, or ask her.

we should all be ashamed on the way these generations treat animals.

science should be more human and use more alternatives for experiments, its time !!!!

thank you

smadar